President's Message

Every January in Japan, there is a special celebration called Coming of Age Day. This event is held to congratulate all young people who have reached 20 years old, which is the age of majority in Japan. This celebration marks an important rite of passage in Japan.

On October 24 at our OHSLA Fall meeting we are, likewise, celebrating a rite of passage for OHSLA. Our organization has reached its twenty year anniversary and I believe that OHSLA is truly coming of age. In literature, coming of age stories chronicle the development and personal growth of a protagonist as she faces certain challenges. Likewise, our world is certainly full of many challenges for health sciences libraries, and OHSLA strives to grow and develop in its efforts to help all of us in meeting those challenges.

We hope you will be able to join us as we celebrate OHSLA's coming of age at the fall meeting. In addition, the meeting will offer a four hour CE class on planning, conducting, and publishing research. Whether you have some experience in this area or are a novice, you will gain valuable information by attending this class. Please see the article by President-Elect, Debi Orr, in this issue of the Voice for the full details. The fall business meeting will take place over the lunch break and we will mark our anniversary at that time.

It's important to our future, to reflect on what we've been doing over the years, and Noreen Mulcahy is playing a key role in helping us do that. As our Archivist, she has written an article, appearing in this issue, which chronicles our history over the last 10 years. OHSLA's first ten years were recorded for us in 2004 by Pamela Elwell and her document is available on the OHSLA website. Noreen's history will also be available on the website sometime in the near future.

This fall, Past President, Stevo Roksandic, will be inviting you to participate in our biennial survey of the membership. It's critical to our growth and development as an association to get your feedback and understand your needs and desires with respect to OHSLA, so when you receive his invitation to complete the survey, please take a few minutes to do so.

Perhaps you have heard about MLA's Futures Task Force. A few months ago, this group issued a set of recommendations. If you haven't read them, I urge you to do so. They can be found at <http://blog.mlanet.org/future>. I found the ideas presented by this task force to be extremely interesting and I believe it would benefit OHSLA to undergo a similar exercise. Therefore, I plan to form an OHSLA Futures Task Force toward the end of 2014 or early in 2015. I'll be looking for some volunteers to serve on this task force, so please consider doing so. I think it will be an interesting project. We'll be delving into the survey results as part of our work and we may gather information in other ways as well. The work of our task force will play a part in promoting our development into the future.

A twenty-year-old is often excited about coming of age, about what the future will hold for her and what role she will play in the world. Likewise, I am excited for OHSLA as it comes of age. I hope you will share in my excitement and believe, with me, in our continued growth and development.

*Charter Members in bold are currently active in OHSLA!

Since its establishment in 1994, the Ohio Health Sciences Library Association continues a multi-purpose mission of promoting health sciences library services, providing a forum for an exchange of ideas and strengthening collaborative relationships. The last 10 years have seen exciting developments for OHSLA, some of which are highlighted in this article.

In Spring of 2005, the final print edition of the Voice was mailed to members. Subsequently, the Voice has become available on the OHSLA website as well distributed via e-mail to members.

The Hospital Library Advocacy committee was formed in 2006-07 by OHSLA to support hospital librarians throughout the state of Ohio. A brochure was completed and distributed to OHSLA members as well as other hospital librarians.

The biggest recognition for OHSLA and health sciences librarians came in 2009 when Columbus, Ohio was the site of the Midwest Chapter Conference of the Medical Library Association. The following people served as members of the Conference Planning Committee and were invaluable to the success of the meeting:

| | | |
|---------------------|-----------------|-----------------|
| Marlene Porter | Mary Piper | Clare Leibfarth |
| Bette Sydelko | Jolene Miller | Michael Douglas |
| Gretchen Hallerberg | Pamela Bradigan | Carol Powell |
| Barbarie Hill | Leslie Schick | Lynda Hartel |

Bette Sydelko, who took on the job of webmaster, was instrumental in the new look of OHSLA's website in 2011. Working with the web-based software, Wild Apricot, Bette was able to transition to an online environment for membership and conference registration.

Speaking of Bette, she received the 2013 Distinguished Librarian of the Year at the MLA Midwest Chapter Conference, East Peoria, IL. Here is an excerpt from the support letter submitted by Stevó Roksandic to the Awards & Scholarship Committee of the Midwest Chapter/MLA:

Bette's willingness to serve a multitude of interests and needs in the medical and academic library communities, her knowledge and experience to provide exceptional support, made her known in the Ohio medical/academic network as one of the most valuable, versatile and dedicated sources of wise and discreet counsel.

As part of the website redesign, OHSLA sponsored a logo design contest in 2013. Denise Cardon of Ocasek Medical Library, Northeast Ohio Medical University won first place and Gerald Natal of College of Health Science and Human Services at University of Toledo won second place. Both of their entries were the inspiration for the final logo, designed by past-president Stevó Roksandic. The final logo that made its debut in Spring of 2014.

These are just some of the reasons for OHSLA to celebrate its 20th Anniversary. Here's to many more years ahead!

GMR Corner

First, welcome to Beth Layton, former Ohioan and director at NEOMED, and now our Associate Director here at the Greater Midwest Region. You can read her message to the region on the GMR Update (<http://nnlm.gov/gmr/about/gmrupdate.html>) or GMR blog The Cornflower (<http://nnlm.gov/gmr/blog/>)

This month we say farewell to our Technology Coordinator, Tiffany Tawzer, who has taken a position in Access Services at Loyola University. We will miss her. Her last day was September 16th. Long-time GMR member Nelly Cruz, who's voice you often heard answering the phone left us at the end of July. Please greet Christina Heinrich whom we welcome as our Project Assistant next time you call our office.

One specialty of the National Network of Libraries of Medicine is handouts and tutorials on NLM databases. New to the PubMed pantheon is "PubMed Journal Searching" focusing on several methods to add a list of journals to a search strategy. PubMed Health is relatively new NLM resource focusing on systematic reviews and clinical effectiveness; a PubMed Health brochure is now available. Most importantly, in addition to the PDF format, most are available in Word for you to use and adapt. For a complete list of NLM and NN/LM downloadable handouts, visit: <http://nnlm.gov/gmr/training/handouts.html>.

The GMR will be funding two sites per state for the upcoming MLA Fall Webinar Series. If your institution is interested in becoming a sponsored site, visit: <http://nnlm.gov/gmr/funding/mlawebcast/>. We still have funding available for Exhibit and Event awards, but other awards are closed for this funding cycle. Look for new opportunities in Spring. These will be posted at <http://nnlm.gov/gmr/funding/> and announced on the GMRLIST.

The National Network of Libraries of Medicine includes all organizations that share health information with health professionals and the public. This includes all libraries, public health departments, and health focused community business organizations. Visit <http://nnlm.gov/gmr/member/> for more information.

Thank you for teaching on and sharing about National Library of Network news and resources. See you in October at OHSLA's Fall Meeting.
